

AutoTrader.com Launches Certified Dealer Display Ad Product; Adds GM Certified As Partner

AutoTrader.com's Dynamic Display Ad Capabilities Used by Dealers To Maximize Inventory

PRNewswire
ATLANTA

AutoTrader.com, the number one automotive classifieds site on the planet, announced today its ongoing commitment to maximizing dealer inventory by launching Certified Display Ads (CDA). CDA gives dealers the ability to create a full-page ad within AutoTrader.com for their certified inventory only. "This program allows dealers who wish to increase sales of certified inventory to spotlight up to eight specials with one ad," said Clark Wood, vice president of marketing for AutoTrader.com. CDA also creates a "See Our Specials" link on the dealer's classified, adds an inventory link off the CDA page as well as a Specials text area at the top of the page.

As an example of the success of CDA, AutoTrader.com has also announced the launch of its new GM Certified Used Vehicles Dealer Display Ads (GMCDDA). Utilizing the existing platform and building on the CDA capabilities already in place, the GMCDDA lets dealers give prominence to GM certified vehicles in their inventories. A GM Certified tile and Certified link serve to highlight the certified listings. GM CDDA qualifies for reimbursement under the GM Individual Dealer Co-Op Advertising Program.

AutoTrader.com has seen certified vehicle searches on its site skyrocket from 77,000 searches in April 2001 to 301,000 searches in March 2002 -- an increase of 291 percent.
