

Cox Automotive 'Power of Three' Delivers

Unparalleled Value for Clients

Collaboration between Autotrader, Kelley Blue Book and Dealer.com designed to reach, engage and convert more shoppers

ATLANTA, Jan. 25, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- Autotrader, Kelley Blue Book and Dealer.com – three pioneers in their own right – have purposefully come together to create the most powerful and complete shopper experience that helps drive more deals for its clients. The digital marketing solution provided by Cox Automotive™ is designed to help automakers and dealers reach more in-market shoppers and engage them at every stage of the car buying process. According to Dealer.com Pixall data, dealers using all three brands convert eight times more online activity than those using dealer sites alone, and Power of Three provides an all-in-one solution to help dealers reap those benefits.

As more shoppers rely on the internet to self-direct the buying process, dealers and automakers must maintain a consistent online presence at every touch point in order to drive engagement and sales. Power of Three helps realize this goal by providing unified access to the industry's most visited consumer shopping site, most trusted vehicle research site, and most widely used dealer digital marketing platform. Cox Automotive's 2017 Car Buyer Journey Study indicates that 87 percent of shoppers interact with Autotrader, Kelley Blue Book's KBB.com or a dealer website before purchasing. Users can leverage this reach to make more targeted connections with in-market shoppers, improving the buying experience and increasing conversion.

"Today's consumers have high expectations for the car-buying process, which makes delivering a high-quality online experience key," said Brian Geitner, president of Cox Automotive Media Solutions. "With consumers using so many different shopping methods and information sources today, creating targeted and consistent messaging can be a challenge. We designed Power of Three to help the automotive industry get better results online because dealers don't just need better classifieds sites or better dealer websites, they need total connectivity of platforms."

To make Power of Three even more valuable for dealers and automakers, Cox Automotive has added new enhancements to several features of the brand's engagement platforms. Autotrader's new Connections App analyzes online listings' web activity to identify units with the greatest walk-in potential. Dealer.com's Audience Targeting reaches Autotrader and KBB.com shoppers and directs them back to dealer websites using Dealer.com's industry leading machine learning and real-time bidding automation. Additionally, the Kelley Blue Book Instant Cash Offer features new customization, more integrations and a license plate validation feature, which have helped increase the tool's offer volume by 19 percent when comparing offers made from January to October of 2016 to those made from January to October of 2015.
