AutoTrader.com, Dent Wizard Sponsor Olympic Cyclist Marty Nothstein's Car for National Hot Rod Association 2006 Racing Season

Driver Takes Winning Record and Competitive Spirit into Fourth Season

AutoTrader.com, the ultimate automotive marketplace, and Dent Wizard, the world leader in paintless dent removal, have partnered to sponsor the race car of Olympic Gold and Silver medalist Marty Nothstein. Nothstein is one of the most recognized cyclists and Olympians in the world, and has recently taken his winning record to the world of drag racing.

Nothstein's 2005 Pontiac Firebird is owned by Brad McWilliams, a National Hot Rod Association (NHRA) veteran car owner. The car will race in the NHRA POWERade and Lucas Oil racing series in the Top Alcohol Funny Car class and will be emblazoned with logos from both AutoTrader.com and Dent Wizard as Nothstein races down the quarter mile.

"The National Hot Rod Association is really in-tune with their highly motivated, growing group of car enthusiasts," said Chip Perry, president and chief executive officer, AutoTrader.com. "We're excited to sponsor Marty this racing season and support a group that can very much benefit from AutoTrader.com's ultimate automotive marketplace."

"Dent Wizard supported Marty last season, and his move to the McWilliams team means even greater quality equipment and an experienced crew," said Kelly Conger, president of Dent Wizard. "We're also looking forward to an increased number of races this year."

Nothstein will drive the AutoTrader.com-Dent Wizard funny car in a series of national events throughout the year. Nothstein's next appearance as part of the NHRA series is at the end of April in Dallas, TX. He'll race through October 15 in Oklahoma City, OK.
