

Dealer.com Advertising Leverages Autotrader and Kelley Blue Book Rich Data Sets to Reach High-Quality, In-Market Audience

New Audience Targeting Solution Serves Up Most Effective and Relevant Ads to Online Auto Shoppers

Burlington, Vermont, March 28, 2016 – The online automotive retailing experience just got a powerful boost with the integration of Dealer.com’s Advertising solution and rich data sets from Autotrader® and Kelley Blue Book®. As part of Cox Automotive™, the three leading brands have teamed to deliver Audience Targeting through Dealer.com®, giving dealers unprecedented ability to reach high-quality, in-market car shoppers.

With Dealer.com Audience Targeting, dealers can reach the combined 38 million unique website visitors that Autotrader and Kelley Blue Book see each month, and direct them back to their dealership website through Dealer.com’s industry-leading machine learning and real-time bidding automation. This combination of technologies and audience data is the most powerful way to reach shoppers on their path to purchase.

“This revolution in online advertising will unlock enormous potential for our dealers and their car shoppers and help them capture existing demand in their markets,” said Wayne Pastore, senior vice president, Dealer.com. “We are uniquely able to bring together the key ingredients to deliver the industry’s most effective digital ads that make the entire online-to-in store process seamless, efficient and enjoyable.”

Dealer.com’s Audience Targeting reaches relevant shoppers at critical moments on their path to the showroom. Data shows that 80 percent of Autotrader visitors are in market to purchase a vehicle, and 54 percent of those visitors will purchase in the next 60 days. Sixty-eight percent of in-market Kelley Blue Book visitors will purchase in the next 60 days.
