

AutoTrader.com Licenses MercExchange Patents for Auction-Style Listings; Auction-Style Selling Tool Has Clear Advantages Over Existing Sites

PRNewswire
ATLANTA

AutoTrader.com, the number one automotive classifieds site on the planet, and MercExchange LLC, holder of several important U.S. patents on internet-based auction and market processes, announced today that they have entered into an agreement that provides AutoTrader.com with a license to MercExchange's patents for internet based auctions. AutoTrader.com's innovative new auction-style buying and selling tool has been built from the ground up to serve the needs of mainstream used car buyers and sellers better than existing auction-style sites. No additional details of the licensing arrangement were released.

"We chose to obtain a license for our Auction-Style product because we respect the MercExchange patents," said Chip Perry, president and chief executive officer of AutoTrader.com. "We are creating a product that will fuel our growth in auction-style car buying and selling, and that will further innovate in the dynamically-priced classified advertising space."

"We are very pleased to have AutoTrader.com as a licensee," said Thomas Woolston, President of MercExchange and inventor of its patented technologies. "AutoTrader.com's online business model has a tremendous opportunity to leverage their current base of listings and customers and allow Auction-Style Listings to quickly become a core product offering on their site."
