The show has taken on a new moniker to represent the exciting changes in this season's coverage. With a combined 132 new vehicle introductions at the four shows, "AutoTrader.com DRIVE" will serve as television's premier automotive showcase. Produced by High Impact Television (HIT), "AutoTrader.com DRIVE" will capture all the excitement at each of the auto shows, giving ESPN viewers an inside look into the nation's most important auto show events, including sneak peeks at the newest vehicles, expert test drives and custom aftermarket products.

Now in its fourth season, ESPN brings back popular TV host, veteran automotive expert and former Motor Trend editor-in-chief, C. Van Tune. Tune brings over 20 years of automotive expertise to ESPN viewers.

"As a long-time AutoTrader.com junkie, I am really excited about our new partnership; AutoTrader.com is my number one destination on the Internet when I shop for a car," said C. Van Tune, host of AutoTrader.com "DRIVE." "And, because I typically buy four to five cars a year (and advise my TV and radio audience on new models daily) I utilize their excellent site resources virtually every day."

"This partnership with the 'DRIVE' series really connects us to our key audience and gives consumers exciting and timely coverage of new vehicles, custom aftermarket products and more," said Scott Tracy, director of strategic marketing, AutoTrader.com. "AutoTrader.com will now have a great opportunity with each show to reach consumers and drive traffic to our site's nearly 3 million vehicles."
