The 2011 campaign will come to life at the National Automobile Dealers Association (NADA) Convention, held February 5 - 7 in San Francisco, with larger-than-life graphics wrapping the AutoTrader.com booth. Throughout 2011, the campaign will continue via print and online ads in top dealer-facing media, including Automotive News, Automotive Remarketing/autoremarketing.com, Dealer Magazine/dealermagazine.com, Used Car Dealer, automotivedigest.com and more. The campaign will also be carried on the websites of the National Automobile Dealers Association (nada.org) and the National Independent Automobile Dealer Association (niada.com). Video interviews featuring AutoTrader.com clients and representatives will also be available online at www.WeWorkForYou.com and the company will push videos, messages and images from the campaign to relevant audiences via the company's social media channels, including Facebook, YouTube and Twitter.

"The 'We Work For You' Campaign is fueled by a simple but powerful belief at AutoTrader.com: we are committed to our customers' success," said Chief Marketing Officer Clark Wood. "We want to do everything we can to make our customers more successful. Featuring real customers in our campaigns enables this message to resonate with our advertisers. The success stories we heard from the customers we're featuring this year are incredibly compelling, and we're excited to circulate their stories through the trade media."

"'We Work For You' is more than a tagline; it is a guiding principle that defines how we approach our customers," Wood continued. "Three years ago our sales force embraced a consultative approach to working with clients that ensures those clients were not only buying the right products — but that they were also using those products to their utmost potential. As we began building this campaign, it was gratifying to see the positive impact of this effort, as customer after customer told us how important AutoTrader.com has been in helping them achieve and exceed their goals."
